Swamped by the Unexpected Rush.

at the rate of more than a thousand a day since Monday had completely swamped to-day the small force of employees in the Bureau of Claims. As a result the commission will not be able to sit at a hearing on awards until Monday. By that time it is hoped the staff of employees will have caught up with their work.

Chairman Robert E. Dowling and Commissioners Mitchell, Mosher, Darlington and Wainwright to-day were in secret session. The force in the Bureau of Claims will probably be enlarged, as the commission has the power to recommend additional appointments.

Since the first hearing on Monday the commission has disposed of only two death cases and less than 300 cases in which compensation was not asked because the victims were incapacitated for less than two weeks. The law does not allow any workman compensation unless he is kept out of employment for more than fourteen days as the result of injuries.

In spite of overtime work, D. A. Golden, chief of the Bureau of Claims and his staff of thirty examiners and investigators, has been able to prepare the papers establishing proof of deaths suitable for an award in only three cases out of forty-three in which awards are asked on deaths. Since Monday eleven new death cases have been reported. Only one of these has been established.

The claim department will probably be able on Monday to submit to the Commission between 100 and 125 cases where compensation will be awarded. With new cases pouring in at the rate of more than 1,000 a day members of the commission appreciate the need of increasing the force in the

"The present force of thirty men in the most important division of the Commission is absurdly inadequate to handle approximately $60,000 cases annually," one official said to-day. "Of course, no one expected when we opened on July 1 that we would get as many as 1,000 cases a day.
